I DON'T KNOW HOW TO INVITE MY FRIEND TO WORSHIP!

It's very possible that a major factor for not inviting my friend to worship is that "I don't know how." For this reason we are going to consider the following suggestions that might help as you make an effort to bring your friend to worship.

First, be positive when you talk to your FRIEND about being your guest for this day of worship. You need to be convinced that Christ is a needed ingredient in their lives, that HE can change them for the better. You want to be a friend by getting them to know about the Lord and salvation through him.

Second, remember that FRIENDS respect and love one another because they want to, not because they have to. It's because of this love that one wishes to share with another. Let them know that your work in the church and relationship with Christ is most important, and they will be more willing to listen because they love and respect you.

Third, explain your motive. Many people resist if they think that they will get a "sales pitch" or just to win you a prize.

Fourth, try to answer any questions they may have before, they ask them. When you are on the defensive it is difficult to be positive. Let them know that they will not be embarrassed or asked to do anything publicly that they would not wish to do. You want them to feel completely at ease at worship and not be apprehensive about what might happen to them. Now, having eliminated the negative, let's emphasize the positive.

Fifth, build up their anticipation of the day. Tell them how much you enjoy the spiritual lessons you receive and the deep sentiment you have as you reflect on the Lord's Supper. Likely, they will wish to share with you the enjoyment that you have, so let them know what a difference Jesus makes in your life. Get them thirsty for the water of life.
