THE IDEAL SERMON

The ideal sermon deals with the needs of those who sit in the pew. The unending quest of those who preach must be to find the real needs of people and meet them with inspired truth. However, one does not preach very long until he is struck with the fact that what people need and what they desire are often far apart. This is not a new phenomenon. In 700 B.C., Israel needed to hear the law of the Lord, but desired something else. They told Isaiah: "Prophesy not unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophesy deceits, get you out of the way..." (Is. 30:11). By the time of Jeremiah, circumstances had grown worse. The priests and prophets had begun to cater to the desires rather than to the needs of the people. The prophet laments: "A wonderful and horrible thing is come to pass in the land: the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so" (Jer. 5:30-31). Paul predicts that such a time would come in the church: "For the time will come when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth..." (II Timothy 4:3-4).

It is human nature to seek approbation rather than admonition. If I had been given the choice as a boy, I would have taken orange juice instead of castor oil! When I preached on immodest clothing, social drinking, etc., where I lived a few years ago, one of the deacons became very upset, withholding his contribution for several weeks. He didn't desire such preaching, but he and his wife surely needed it! Another church I worked with had a portion of the eldership and the church to fall under the influence of doctrinal and moral liberalism. The critical need of the church was clear doctrinal preaching, but regrettably, they would not have it so. The adulterer does not relish sermons on adultery (witness Herod and John), but they must still be preached because they are needed. When you hear a sermon, I counsel you not to judge it merely on whether you "liked" it or it made you "feel good." The better criterion is whether you needed it. But even if you didn't, someone else probably did!

Michael McDaniel

I missed you at worship today, I looked again & again--- & when the whispers faded away, I hoped that you'd come in. I thought about you while I sang, & looked at the empty seat; & as the voices softly rang, I listened for your feet. Then after worship, I turned to greet the visitors & friends for whom I care; still a spot was empty, & dark, & black, because YOU were not there. And the reason I'm telling you this is because I truly care whenever you choose or have to miss, I want to see you there.
