Be careful for nothing;
Be prayerful for everything;
Be thankful for anything.
~D.L. Moody

Jesus taught us that we are the “salt of the earth” (Matthew 5:13). For salt to preserve or add flavor to meat, it must be in contact with the meat. Otherwise, it is “good for nothing.”

None of us lives as a hermit. We don't go out to some cave in the mountains and avoid any human contact. But do we ever make sure we are in contact with other people? Do we ever take an extra two or three minutes to go in at the bank instead of using the ATM? Do we ever go in to the counter at Burger King instead of driving through? While these may not seem like important things, they could be.

On Sunday, we get a special opportunity to have people come “into our lives.” On this day of worship, some people may be here who have never been here before. They are looking for something good in their lives, but they are also looking for people who care.

Once again, the small things will make all the difference. Did you give up “your pew” to a visitor? How about “your” parking space? Did you smile when a visitor walked into your Bible class, or did you go talking with your neighbor?

People are looking for that personal touch. Let's not let them down.
