Please, Daddy, Let's Go

Author Unknown

Years ago, while I was serving as an evangelist for a congregation in the western part of the United States, I experienced something with two different children that I suppose I will never forget.

In the first instance I was visiting in the home of a family that had not attended our services in some time. The little 5-year-old girl entered the room and interrupted the conversation by asking me to do her a favor. She went on to say, “My Sunday school teacher was helping us to make a lamb out of paper and cotton. We haven't been to Sunday school in a long time and I am afraid she might throw mine away. Will you ask her to not throw it away? Mommy said that we will go again pretty soon.” I promised her I would tell the teacher, as the mother hurried the little girl from the room. There was a lump in my throat.

A few weeks later, I was at the door of the church building shaking hands with the members after the sermon, when a little 4-year-old boy came up to me and tugged on my hand. He asked if he could whisper something to me. I bent down to listen. He said, “Would you ask my mommy and daddy to bring me to Sunday school? I think they will bring me if you ask them to. But don't tell them that I told you to ask?” He hurried away leaving me with another lump in my throat.

It's unfortunate that we so often do not realize how eager our children are to be close to God and Godly people when they are small. It's also unfortunate that we wait too long to help them. I think the following poem, says it all.

DAD’S IDOL

When asked by the barber what kind of haircut he wanted, a little boy replied: “One with a hole in the middle, just like Dad’s.”

(Cont’d from front)

A little girl with shining eyes, her little face aglow, said, “Daddy, it’s time for Bible school; let’s go.” “Oh no,” said Daddy, “not today, I’ve worked hard all this week; and I must have one day of rest... I’m going to the creek. For there I can relax and rest and fishing’s fine, they say. So run along, don’t bother me; we’ll go to church some day.”

Months and years have passed away, but Daddy hears that plea no more – “Let’s go to Bible school.” Those childish days are o’er. And now that Daddy’s growing old, his hair is turning gray, he finds time to go to church; but what does his daughter say? “Oh no, Daddy, not today. I’ve stayed up most of the night...and I must get myself some sleep. Besides, I look a fright.”

Then Daddy lifts a trembling hand to brush away the tears. He seems to hear the pleading voice distinctly through the years. He sees a small girl’s little face, upturned with eyes aglow. “It’s almost time for Bible School, PLEASE DADDY, CAN’T WE GO?”
