BIBLE STUDY

Back when our children were a lot younger than now I always looked forward, and still do to the Christmas time of year. Although we don't celebrate the Christmas as a lot of the religious world does, we did take the time to be with family and friends and exchange gifts and yes wait for Santa to make his annual delivery. Sometimes of course it becomes necessary for dad and mom to help Santa out with such things as assembling items he has left. Invariably I would pour out all the little pieces on the floor, then go and get my tools and start trying to put it all together. Back then directions didn't come with pictures as much as they did with just written instructions. They'd usually be set off to the side and not used until I'd gotten a wheel on backwards, or something else out of place that just wouldn't let it all go together correctly. Finally frustrated and at wits end I'd pick up the directions and look closely to find out what was missing. Usually it was me who had made a mistake and put something where it didn't need to go. By trial and error over a number of years I finally understood that they put those directions in the box for a good reason and it wasn't just to be used in the bottom of the parakeet cage.

God has given us all a set of directions to follow. The problem is that so many times the world wants to set it aside and try to make all the pieces of life fit together in a convenient package. The harder we try to make everything work the worse it seems life can become for us. In some cases we tend to follow our heart. The heart can sometimes be a good guide for us especially when it comes to being compassionate. But when it just deals with the "passion" it can be misleading. At other times we may want to follow the mind. God gave us the ability to reason and that certainly is something for which we need to be thankful. But also we need to realize that it is not within man to direct his footsteps.
